To the Right Honourable,

The Lords Commissioners For executing the Office of Lord High Admiral of Great Britain, and Ireland, &c.

My Lords,

As Some of the Writings from which the following Plates were engraved have been so far honoured with your Approbation, as to recommend me to be appointed by your Lordships Writing Master to the Royal Academy at Portsmouth, where can I so properly address them as to Your Lordships Patronage and Protection?

And as they are now published with a View to the Improvement of the Young Gentlemen educated at this Academy, and may be useful in training Youth to the several Branches of the Navy, over which you preside, and to the Trade which You protect, I flatter my self this Address will be received by your Lordships as no unworthy Expression of my sincere Gratitude and Respect. I am,

Yo. Lordships,

Most Obliged & Dutiful Servant,

Richard Clark

Musick.

Fiercest Grief can charm;
tes severest Rage disarm:
can soften Pain to Ease,
ke despair & madness please,
ys below it doth improve,
ntedate the Bliss above.

What ravishes the Soul what charms the Ear
Is Musick, tho' a various Dress it wear Beauty is Musick too, tho in Disguise
Too fine to touch the Ear it strikes the Eyes
Tis Music heav'nly such as in a Sphere
We only can admire, but cannot Hear.

Beauty makes its way directly to the Soul, and diffuses a secret Satisfaction through the Imagination. It gives a Finishing to any Thing that is Great or Uncommon.
The very first Discovery of it strikes the Mind with an inward Joy and spreads
Delight through all its Faculties. mmm.

You pass too great a Compliment on my Judgment when You desire my Advice concerning the Education of your Son, I must indeed admit it a Matter of the utmost Importance to give a Youth of so capacious a Genius an advantagious Education, but certainly the same Prudence and Penetration that accompany all your other Undertakings will not fail to direct You to make Use of the best Masters, and I am convinced You have Generosity enough to reward them according to their Merits. What further Advice can You then want from

To accumulate and to dissipate immense Riches, is seldom the Work of more than two Generations. The Father scrapes, and the Son squanders. The Father gets rich, the Son poor. This is the usual Course of Things. This is what facilitates Commerce; otherwise the Money hoarded by private Families would not circulate.

A Father who loves not his Children, is a Monster; and a King who loves not his Subjects, is a Tyrant. Both the Father and the King are the living Images of God, whose Empire is founded on Love. Nature made the Father for the good of his Children: Policy made the King for the Happiness of his Subjects.

First follow Nature, and your Judgment frame,
By her just Standard, which is still the same:
Unerring Nature still divinely bright,
One clear, unchang'd, and universal Light,
Life, Force, and Beauty, must to all impart,
At once the Source, and End, and Test of Art.

The man who is fitted out by Nature, and sent into the world with great Abilities, is capable of doing much good or mischief in it; It ought therefore to be the care of Education to infuse into the untainted Youth early notions of Justice, and Honour, that so the possible advantages of good Parts may not take an evil turn, nor be perverted to base and unworthy purposes.
